The Army and Navy Journal reprints the following description of what the Spaniards are doing at Cadis, as seen by Eugene Wolf, a correspondent of the Berlin Tageblatts

Three long days and the greater part of as many night I have spent in the harbor of Cadiz and in her dock yards. I saw some formidable intrenchments going on at the northern end of the bay, at Rota. The dam at the south end of the city is being strengthened and fortified, and three batteries have been erected. A naval officer told me Cadis had fifteen or sixteen new Frupp guns. Whether there is any ammunition for these guns I could not learn. The Cadis people doubt it. Another mat-The Casis people doubt it. Another mat-ter which is quite serious: Gun practice seems to be a lost art in Cadiz. I have not heard a shot fired during the week I am here. "The present captain general does not think much of it," said a black-eyed senors to me. 'It is so hard on one's nerves, and such a waste of powder besides."

Waste of Powder. "'A waste of powder,' indeed! The gov-ernor general of the Philippines must have een of the same opinion.

"I am almost ashamed of this letter. was sent out to report war, or at least war preparations; and, though I searched high and low, I cannot discover any. I came to and low, I cannot discover any. I came to this city from Cologne, the Rhenish fortness, and I vow that I saw more war preparations there in a day than I did here in a week. The soldiery is lounging about, army officers are gambling, firting and smoking cigarettes. I hoped to find the captain general on a bed of laurels, and found him in a forest of orange blossoms. His intimation of war secrets was a mere bluff. There are no secret preparations. If there were any I would have seen them. "The spot where Cadis is mortal is its water supply, or rather its want of the commodity. The city has few wells, and 90 per cent of the necessary water comes from Banta Maria, which is six miles distant to the north by sea and nineteen miles by rail."

Under date of May 9 Mr. Wolf writes as llows: "At last I have seen the Spanish Armada No. 2, or the 'reserve fleet.' The Spanish Armada call it the new Armada. It consists of the Pelayo, Alfonso XII., the Vittoria, the Normannia, formerly owned by the Hamburg line; the Columbia, one torpedo boat destroyer and a torpedo boat. The Carlos V., an ironciad, is on the way here.

Some Spanish Ships.

"The Pelayo is a fine ironciad. It makes a good impression. There are four big guns on deck and a good many smaller ones at the sides. The Spaniards regard this ship with almost superstitious veneration. Pictures of her are everywhere; the general public thinks her the fastest and most formidable craft affoat. But I have been talking with people who know the Pelayo well, and I gather from their intimations and hints that she is one of those belies who are beautiful only when in repose. She has a bad walk on her, as they say. For that reason the Pelayo has never been taken around much. She only shows off in the safest of harbora, and then is much admired. Only once did she venture out to sea, I am told, and the experiment was disastrous. Pelayo is a fine ironciad. It makes

"But I must not forget the brand new "But I must not forget the brand new ironciad which has been building opposite the arsenal for the last ten years. A week ago she was far enough advanced to receive her boilers. But the chain broke and the boilers went down into the hold, twenty-four feet deep. They went into smitherens, of course. Now they are erecting a great derrick near by to hoist up the pieces. This is the most important work going on in the harbor. All the docks are full of old iron cannon, dilap, dated armor, old cannon balls, etc. In the yards of Carrara arsenal the gun carriages and other accourtements for the Vittoria, Normannia and Columbia are being constructed amid great secrecy. The Normannia will face the enemy under the name of Rapido; the Columbia has been renamed Patriota. I have made the acquaintance of the commander of the Pelayo, who constantly wears civilian dress. He looks like an old, dried-up schoolmaster. But those Yankees should look out for the commander of the Columbia. This is a one-eyed gentleman, and everybody knows that the most successful pirates in the story books had but one eye."

captain Osbon, who brought to New York a description of Cervera's boats as they appeared in the harbor of Curacao before they went to Santiago, said that they were so poorly equipped that they were even forced to buy surgeons' needles. If the Tageblatt's report of the condition at Cadis is authentic, it would seem as if the Cadis fieet, if it ever does sail, would go to see equally unprepared.

If you case try Carter's Little Liver Pills for sick headache, biliousness or con-stipation, you will never be without them. They are purely vegetable, small and easy to take. Don't forget this.
